JUST HANG IN THERE

One of the city's hippest restaurants comes with a side dish of serious green therapy in the middle of busy London. Specialising in Japanese, Brazilian, and Peruvian cuisine, SUSHISAMBA opened in 2018 in the famed Opera Terrace atop the Market Building at Covent Garden. With its glorious "live ceiling" installation, the restaurant's décor pays homage to its history as a former greenhouse for exotic plants. Boasting a mix of 700 South American and Japanese hanging plants, the mini-jungle basks in the natural light that streams from the floor-to-ceiling windows opening onto Covent Garden's historic Piazza. 🌿

SUMMER COOLERS

FREAK ME OUT
Perhaps the most impressive vegan dessert in the city comes from Brick Lane-based Canvas Café, which serves a vegan-friendly version of the over-the-top icy favourite, the freak shake.

GOLDEN GOODNESS
The super-healthy turmeric latte gets a summery makeover in many London cafés. With venues around the city, Crussh was among the first to start the iced turmeric latte trend.

NON-NAUGHTY SCOOPS
Vegans, celiacs, and allergy sufferers don't have to skip ice cream thanks to Soho-based Yorica, which specialises in tasty ice creams, crêpes, and waffles that are free from all 14 major allergens.
